Long Survivor Likely Winner

Chico Hayes, owned by J. D. Gill Jr., of McIntire, Ohio, won down with Arlway, owned by R. M. Kellogg of Kingsville, Tex., in the first round.

Still regarded as the dog to beat, Long Survivor, owned by Dr. E. B. Calne of Jonesboro, Ark. Survivor ran a faultless, eight-bevy hunt Feb. 23.

After the final hunt, the three judges either huddled to pick the winner or order a "second series" matching the top dogs.

LOOKS GOOD—This sexlet of aquanauts at Cypress Gardens, Fla., has the proper water ski form, and they would be rated a shoo-in for any beauty contest. (NBA)

AEA Is Lashed

While I am very mindful, I'm going to do everything in my power to see to it that they do not.

Faubus pointed out that his tax bill specifically earmarks 72½ per cent of the revenue for school purposes, and then said that the organized school people could not escape some responsibility for the tax increase.

"I will continue to press for the passage of this legislation because I know it is necessary to prevent a reduction of services," said the governor. "I have decided on my course and I intend to stick with it."

Asked if he thought that the AEA statement would lead the public to believe that the tax increase was his proposal alone, Faubus said:

"The people will judge from the facts, rather than from what is said."

Faubus declined to speculate on whether or not the AEA statement has hurt the chances for passage of his bill.

Previously the influential organization, which is comprised of teachers and school administrators, had indicated that it would actively support any tax increase for public schools.

For public schools, the AEA wanted the sales tax increased from two to three percent over the next two years. Instead of 1 month as Faubus has proposed.

Both proposals are aimed at providing an additional $10,000,000 for public schools as emergency aid.

The AEA bill would make the revenue available annually, while under the Faubus bill the revenue would be spread over a two-year period.

There is little chance that the AEA will change its position, and the fate of the 13-month measure is receiving stern opposition in the legislature.

"We recognize that there is little chance of passage of the revenue measures at this session of the Legislature sufficient to undo the minimum program we believe to be essential to the preservation of the public schools," said the AEA statement.

"If the Legislature enacts no measures, state aid to the public schools next year will be reduced by a minimum of $10 million per unit. By any standard of judgment the schools face a critical situation."

"It appears that most of the money from the proposed 13 month increase in the sales tax will be required to make up the present deficit in the state budget, and to provide necessary funds for other agencies of the state government. The financial crisis is not confined to the public schools but is spread over the whole of the state government. This means that the state will have to raise a tax, therefore, is not a 'school' tax but a general tax."

The AEA bill would make the 13-month plan adopted, the schools would get only half of the $10,000,000 it is supposed to receive.

A proposal to submit a constitutional amendment to the people to put a limit of 30 mills on the amount of tax which a school district can levy was also criticized in the AEA statement. The organization said it would have no objection to a millage limit after the new property tax equalization bill takes full effect in 1957, but doesn't want the millage to be restricted before that.

If the proposed constitutional amendment is submitted, the people would vote on it in 1958.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks rose to $162 yesterday, an increase for the day of $14.

Fulton said in prepared testimony, however, that these prices can't really be compared with 1929 figures, for one thing, of the substantial decline in the value of the dollar in the past quarter century.

"The price inflation we have seen since 1929," he said, "would by itself mean that in terms of 1929 levels, prices will be higher than they were in 1929."

The stock exchange president went on to say there are "some similarities" between 1929 and 1954 but "it is the difference which is significant."

"We believe," he said, "that the market has been functioning in an orderly manner and that the present market level reflects the public's appraisal of present business conditions and prospects for the future."

"To guard against 'speculation,'" he said, the exchange has "kept a careful watch for excessive buying which would indicate unsound conditions in the sale of securities either on our own market or elsewhere."

While I am very mindful, I'm going to do everything in my power to see to it that they do not.

Faubus pointed out that his tax bill specifically earmarks 72½ per cent of the revenue for school purposes, and then said that the organized school people could not escape some responsibility for the tax increase.

"I will continue to press for the passage of this legislation because I know it is necessary to prevent a reduction of services," said the governor. "I have decided on my course and I intend to stick with it."

Asked if he thought that the AEA statement would lead the public to believe that the tax increase was his proposal alone, Faubus said:

"The people will judge from the facts, rather than from what is said."

Faubus declined to speculate on whether or not the AEA statement has hurt the chances for passage of his bill.

Previously the influential organization, which is comprised of teachers and school administrators, had indicated that it would actively support any tax increase for public schools.

The Associated Press averaged of 60 selected stocks rose to $162 yesterday, an increase for the day of $14.

Fulton said in prepared testimony, however, that these prices can't really be compared with 1929 figures, for one thing, of the substantial decline in the value of the dollar in the past quarter century.

"The price inflation we have seen since 1929," he said, "would by itself mean that in terms of purchasing power—prices will reach 1929 levels within a few years of dollars—except 1929 prices were 50 per cent or more lower."

The stock exchange president went on to say there are "some similarities" between 1929 and 1934 but "it is the difference which is significant."

"We believe," he said, "that the market has been functioning in an orderly manner and that the present market level reflects the public's appraisal of present business conditions and prospects for the future."

"To guard against 'skulduggery,'" he said, the exchange has "kept a careful watch for excessive buying which would indicate unsound conditions in the sale of securities either on our own market or elsewhere."

Army Board Considers Fate of Olson

ST. BRAGG, N. C. (UP)—An Army general court-martial today will determine the punishment to be imposed on P. H. Olson, convicted of aiding the enemy while a prisoner in Korea.

The eighth court case charged a sentence ranging from a reprimand to death.

The prosecution, however, said the death penalty would not be asked for. Mr. Sgt. William H. Olson, convicted on three of seven specifications of aiding the enemy, was charged with aiding the enemy by the death of a fellow prisoner.

Olson, 40-year-old Army career man, was found guilty of aiding the enemy by the death of a fellow prisoner, United States and writing pro-Communist articles for a camp newspaper.

He was visibly shaken when the court after hours of continuing deliberation, announced the verdict. Tears came to his eyes as he held his head.

"I feel I was not the only man on trial in this case. Every man who was a prisoner of war or who was a prisoner of war was on trial," Olson said.

Olson, a native of Youngsville, Pa., was convicted. He has been living in Lumberton, N.C. The charge originally contained eight specifications. One count, alleging that he wrote a surrender letter, was dropped when the prosecution rested its case. The others included information on fellow prisoners and making propaganda recordings for the broadcast.

The case will be reviewed by Col. Ashton Hayes, of Ft. Bragg, staff judge advocate, who will submit recommendations to Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleburne, commanding general of Ft. Bragg.

If the sentence involves discharge or confinement for more than a year, it is automatically referred to a board of review at the Pentagon. If that board approves the finding, Olson must be given 30 days to petition the Court of Military Appeals for a review.

If the death sentence is passed, the case is automatically sent to the Supreme Court.

The trial, which ended midway last week, saw 31 prosecution and 29 defense witnesses taking the stand. Olson testified twice in his own behalf.

He said he followed instructions of a Chinese Red officer in making a speech before the court and that he was not a Communist.

LT. Col. Bruce Gillaspie, defense counsel, directed the short, stocky sergeant of 20 years service was a victim of "wild, unprovoked" attacks by the Chinese. Witnesses had testified that he had written articles and made speeches at the request of the Chinese.

What he was doing, ... Regardless of what he did, Olson did more by far, than any other witness.

He was a prisoner of war or who was a prisoner of war was on trial, Olson said.

He said he followed instructions of a Chinese Red officer in making a speech before the court and that he was not a Communist.

AEA Is Lashed

While I am very mindful, I'm going to do everything in my power to see to it that they do not.

Faubus pointed out that his tax bill specifically earmarks 72 1/2 per cent of the revenue for school purposes, and then said that the organized school people could not escape some responsibility for the tax increase.

"I will continue to press for the passage of this legislation because I know it is necessary to prevent a reduction of services," said the governor. "I have decided on my course and I intend to stick with it."

Asked if he thought that the AEA statement would lead the public to believe that the tax increase was his proposal alone, Faubus said:

"The people will judge from the facts, rather than from what is said."

Faubus declined to speculate on whether or not the AEA statement has hurt the chances for passage of his bill.

Previously the influential organization, which is comprised of teachers and school administrators, had indicated that it would actively support any tax increase for public schools.

For public schools, the AEA wanted the sales tax increased from two to three percent over the next two years. Instead of 1 month as Faubus has proposed.

Both proposals are aimed at providing an additional $10,000,000 for public schools as emergency aid.

The AEA bill would make the revenue available annually, while under the Faubus bill the revenue would be spread over a two-year period.

There is little chance that the two proposals will pass, and the fate of the 13-month measure is receiving stern opposition in both houses.

The AEA statement said:

"We recognize that there is little chance of passage of the revenue measures at this session of the Legislature sufficient to undertake the minimum program we believe to be essential to the preservation of the public schools."

"If the Legislature enacts no measures, state aid to the public schools next year will be reduced by a minimum of $10 million per unit. By any standard of judgment the schools face a critical situation."

"It appears that most of the money from the proposed 13 month increase in the sales tax will be required to make up the present deficit in the state budget, and to provide necessary funds for other agencies of the state government. The financial crisis is not confined to the public schools but is spread over the whole of the state government. This means that the state is facing a general tax cut, a general tax cut."

The AEA statement said that the 13-month plan is adopted, the schools would get only half of the $10,000,000 it is supposed to receive.

A proposal to submit a constitutional amendment to the people to put a limit of 30 mills on the amount of tax which a school district can levy was also mentioned in the AEA statement. The organization said it would have no objection to such a limit after the new property tax legislation bill takes full effect in 1957, but doesn't want the limit to be restricted before that.

If the proposed constitutional amendment is submitted, the people would vote on it in 1958.

State Teachers Finds New Coach

At Clarksville Koon had accepted the ASTC job for "financial advancement." His salary was $1,200 a year.

Sen. Fred Stafford of Marked Tree backed the bill on grounds that high state teacher taxes are costing the state revenue. He said it was giving Arkansas into adjoining states on tax liquor.

Sen. Roy Kilham of Harrison spoke against the bill, said, "We have done enough to help the liquor people and it's time to stop taking money out of the state treasury for nothing."

The vote on the bill was 12 for, 11 against. Eighteen votes were needed for passage.

Group Favorable to School Mill Limit

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A proposed constitutional amendment to place a ceiling of 30 miles on property taxes levied by school districts won approval of a joint Senate-House Constitutional Amendments Committee today.

The proposal is one of 27 suggested changes in the Constitution which have introduced in the Legislature. The Legislature is allowed to submit three proposed constitutional amendments to the election.

The present Constitution provides that school millage can not be limited. The proposal approved today by the committee would repeal the no-limit rule and substitute a ceiling of 30 miles. It is sponsored by Rep. Talbot Field of Hempstead County.

Forrest Russell, executive secretary of the Arkansas Education Association, and several other spokesmen spoke against the proposal at the committee's meeting.

The U. S. auto industry 6,124,788 passenger cars in 1953, sold 5,738,889 at home and 186,159 abroad, but it started the year with a stock of about 375,000 cars.

H-Bomb Plane Ready for Combat

WASHINGTON (UP)—The B-52 Stratofortress, built to carry hydrogen weapons of the world's fastest bomber speeds, will start going into combat units in late spring.

Air Secretary Harold G. Talbot, disclosed today that first combat models of the giant jet bomber will go to the Strategic Air Command's 3rd Bomb Wing, Castle Air Force Base, Merced, Calif., that wing now flies 600-miles-an-hour B-47 Stratofortresses, much smaller and slightly slower than the B-52.

The force will have about 350 Stratofortresses and 200 tankers under the present outlook.

The all-jet heavy bomber force will supplant the Strategic Air Command's B-36 super bomber, America's chief means today of delivering the H-bomb. The B-36, covered by six piston engines and four jets, is a longer range plane than the B-52 but much slower.

Without refueling, the B-52 can fly better than 6,000 miles compared with the B-36's 10,000.

The B-52's will be long range jet bombers of the B-47 Stratofortress, which the Air Force now has well over 1,000.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Supreme Allied commander in Europe, said repeatedly that Russia has no defense today against a plane of the B-47 type.

Two of the parachutists were picked up by an Air Force helicopter and taken to the Greenville, Miss., Air Force Base. The third parachutist was hanging from a tree in a swampy, wooded area.

The Civil Air Patrol said at 11:15 a. m. (CST) that a helicopter was trying to reach him. The collision occurred about 8:40 a. m.

There was no confirmation of the crash or rescue from the Greenville base, which is located about 50 miles east of this southern Arkansas city.

T. N. Greenway of McGhee said that the propeller-driven craft was demolishing but did not burn. He said the T-33 went down in flames.

Jones said that at the time he saw the plane "it was already a ball of fire and I couldn't tell what kind it was." Jones said he saw another plane circle the area and later saw a helicopter.

A report from Dumas, a few miles north of here said that a plane crashed and all personnel were picked up by helicopter.

Striker said that the exact locations of the crash had not been determined.

Police, reinforced by county officers, watched the schools closely to prevent an outbreak of violence feared since Monday night's school board meeting. That meeting ended in hysterical shouting and name-calling and the presence of an augmented police force was believed to have prevented fistfights.

Group Favorable to School Mill Limit

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A proposed constitutional amendment to place a ceiling of 30 miles on property taxes levied by school districts won approval of a joint Senate-House Constitutional Amendments Committee today.

The proposal is one of 27 suggested changes in the Constitution which have introduced in the Legislature. The Legislature is allowed to submit three proposed constitutional amendments to the election.

The present Constitution provides that school millage can not be limited. The proposal approved today by the committee would repeal the no-limit rule and substitute a ceiling of 30 miles. It is sponsored by Rep. Talbot Field of Hempstead County.

Forrest Russell, executive secretary of the Arkansas Education Association, and several other spokesmen spoke against the proposal at the committee's meeting.

The U. S. auto industry 6,124,788 passenger cars in 1953, sold 5,738,889 at home and 186,159 abroad, but it started the year with a stock of about 375,000 cars.

H-Bomb Plane Ready for Combat

WASHINGTON (UP)—The B-52 Stratofortress, built to carry hydrogen weapons of the world's fastest bomber speeds, will start going into combat units in late spring.

The B-52's first Stratofortress "is scheduled in the late spring." Other sources indicated the outfit should have its full complement of 30 heavy bombers a few months later.

More than 20 have been built at Boeing Airplane Company's Seattle, Wash., plant and are in various stages of flight tests.

The Air Force eventually will have a $4,000,000,000 intercontinental ballistic missile program.

The B-52's will be long range bombers, much smaller and slightly slower than the B-36.

Costing $4,000,000 a piece, the B-52 is a 185-ton monster with eight engines mounted in pairs under its thin, swept-back wings.

Each engine delivers 10,000 pounds of thrust, driving the behemoth through the air like a fighter plane at close to the speed of sound.

Speed travels 600 miles an hour at the 10-mile altitude where the B-52 will operate on globe-girdling missions.

To Walk The Night

By William Sleace

THE STORY: There were certain ominous overtones to what should have been a joyful occasion when Bark (Berkeley Jones) and Jerry Lister returned to Collegeville to watch a football game. Bark is unable to understand the feeling. After the game they go to the observatory to visit Dr. LeNormand, a friend of Jerry's, and the feeling grows more intense. LeNormand was in the observatory, all right.

Chapter IV
The room was round and perhaps 20 feet in diameter. It was floored by the observatory dome.

The force will have about 350 Stratofortresses, 200 tankers under the present outlook.

The all-jet heavy bomber force will supplant the Strategic Air Command's B-36 super bomber. America's chief means today of delivering the H-bomb. The B-36, covered by six piston engines and four jets, is a longer range plane than the B-52 but much slower.

Without rotating, the B-52 can fly better than 6,000 miles compared with the B-36's 10,000.

H-Bomb Plane Ready for Combat

WASHINGTON (UP)—The B-52 Stratofortress, built to carry hydrogen weapons of the world's fastest bomber speeds, will start going into combat units in late spring.

The B-52's will be long range bombers, much smaller and slightly slower than the B-36.

Costing $4,000,000 a piece, the B-52 is a 185-ton monster with eight engines mounted in pairs under its thin, swept-back wings.

Each engine delivers 10,000 pounds of thrust, driving the behemoth through the air like a fighter plane at close to the speed of sound.

To Walk The Night

By William Sleace

THE STORY: There were certain ominous overtones to what should have been a joyful occasion when Bark (Berkeley Jones) and Jerry Lister returned to Collegeville to watch a football game. Bark is unable to understand the feeling. After the game they go to the observatory to visit Dr. LeNormand, a friend of Jerry's, and the feeling grows more intense. LeNormand was in the observatory, all right.

Chapter IV
The room was round and perhaps 20 feet in diameter. It was floored by the observatory dome.

The force will have about 350 Stratofortress and 200 tankers under its command.

The all-jet heavy bomber force will supplant the Strategic Air Command's B-36 super bomber.

America's chief means today of delivering the H-bomb, the B-36, covered by six piston engines and four jets, is a longer range plane than the B-52 but much slower.

Without refueling, the B-36 can fly better than 6,000 miles compared with the B-52's 10,000.

U. S. Could Have Crushed Russia

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any time in recent years this country probably could have crushed Russia in a preventive war intended to destroy the Communist before they were strong enough to attack the United States.

That the war wasn't made, while this country had atomic superiority, was evidence the United States intended to try to sweeten it out with the Russians in the hope war might never be necessary.

This may have been a fatal policy and in the end prove the undoing of the United States. No one can be sure the Russians, once they're sufficiently armed, won't make a sudden overpowering attack on this country.

Winston Churchill yesterday, while visiting the United States, holds vast superiority over Russia in hydrogen bombs right now, predicted Russia may have enough of them in two to four years to try an attack on North America.

The existing policy is therefore one of the obvious fables of history. So were recent major decisions whose outcome couldn't be predicted either.

Triplets Give Couple 17th Child

DERMOTT (UP) — A prolific Negro couple became the parents of triplets here Sunday night.

They were the 15th, 16th and 17th children born to Alma Lee Brown, 31, and Jessie Brown, 30, who previously had two sets of twins. Attendants at St. Mary's hospital said today the children were in excellent condition.

Churchill expressed some belief in the hope No. 2, but not too vigorously, when he said: "A curious paradox has emerged. After a century has been passed it may be said that the worst things get better."

Churchill did say he didn't think the Russians could win a hydrogen war if they started one — but he didn't predict any winner in such a struggle — since the West, he said, could retaliate from bases outside the world.

But even if they were afraid to start a hydrogen war, for fear of what might happen to them in return, the Russians might start one. The whole world's fear of such a war.

They might do it by trying to pressure their neighbors into submission since the West would have to be careful about starting a defensive action which might lead to a hydrogen war.

Any one of these possibilities is a guess but the Western statesmen, including Churchill, are in exactly the same position as any man in the street: they can only wonder what Russia will do when she has the power and means to stay prepared.

But Churchill's statements about Russia's present inferiority in hydrogen weapons goes far to explain why the Communists have been so careful so far not to begin an agricultural lands, rolling plains with grazing beef cattle, jungles where wild profusion, oil fields, beach resorts, emerald, gold or silver mines.

For Colombia, in addition to its natural beauties for the tourist, is also fabulously rich in natural resources. It is the world's second largest coffee producer and the second largest petroleum producer in South America.

Call in the rich Cauca Valley, is the fastest growing city in Colombia and plans are now under way for the development of industrial, agricultural complexes similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority. The master plan for this program was developed by David E. Lilienthal, original TVA chairman.

Call has made a bid for tourists with a sporty new golf course and features a swimming pool atop one of its hills.

Old monasteries and remains of ancient fortresses can be seen alongside modern conveniences for tourists in the port city of Cartagena on the Caribbean. Cartagena was once the Queen City of the Spanish Main.

Another famous city is Barranquilla on the beautiful Magdalena River. It is a world famous port where paddlewheel steamers like those years ago on the Mississippi can be seen plying the river.

Colombia Is a Blend of the Old, New

BOGOTA, Colombia (Special) — A blend of the old and the new makes Colombia a fascinating country to the tourists who are more and more discovering the attractions of its natural beauty and its modern conveniences.

Bogota, which nestles amid Andean peaks, in nearly 9,000 feet high and is one of the oldest cities in the Americas. It was founded in 1538 by Gonzalo Jimenez de Quesada, a Spaniard, and has preserved the delicate architecture of a century and a half.

Modern office buildings, the temperature frequently drops sharply at the evening and a tropical climate welcome addition when you begin to explore the multitudinous sights of the city.

The Colonial Museum in Bogota stands on the site of the old Spanish monastery, and Silve Ballester's residence, tucked high on a mountainside, overlooks the city where the Palacio de San Carlos, built in the 1600s, now houses the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Equally interesting and ancient cities can be reached by air from Bogota within an hour or two and present a varied pattern of rich agricultural lands, rolling plains with grazing beef cattle, jungles where wild profusion, oil fields, beach resorts, emerald, gold or silver mines.

U. S. Could Have Crushed Russia

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Any time in recent years this country probably could have crushed Russia in a preventive war intended to destroy the Communist before they were strong enough to attack the United States.
That the war wasn't made, while this country had atomic superiority, was evidence the United States intended to try to sweeten it out with the Russians in the hope of a "cold war" in the end prove the undoing of the United States. No one can be sure the Russians, once they're sufficiently armed, won't make a "sudden overpowering attack" on this country.
Winston Churchill yesterday, while visiting the United States, holds vast superiority over Russia in hydrogen bombs right now, predicted Russia may have enough of them in two to four years to try an attack on North America.
The "sweeping-out policy" is therefore one of the obvious "calculables" of history. So were recent major decisions whose outcome couldn't be predicted either.

There are alternative hopes to set beside the dismal prospect that Russia may spring on the United States when they are able to be civilized enough not to make war or force one.
1. That the Russian leadership may be civilized enough not to make war or force one.
2. That the two giants, once they're fairly equal in their ability to annihilate each other — perhaps both at the same time — most of mankind too, will then be content not to fight but live side by side.
Churchill expressed some belief in hope No. 2, but not too vigorously. He said: "A curious paradox has emerged. After a century has been passed it may be said that the worst things get better."
Churchill did say he didn't think the Russians could win a hydrogen war if they started one — but he didn't predict any winner. In such a struggle — since the West, bombs, could retaliate from bases start a hydrogen war, for fear of what might happen to them in return, the Russians might start on the whole world's fear of trying a war.
They might do it by such a pressure their neighbors into submission since the West would have to be careful about starting a defensive action which might lead to a hydrogen war.
Any one of these possibilities is a guess but the Western statesmen, including Churchill, are in exactly the same position as any man in the street: they can only wonder what Russia will do when she has the power and inclination to try.

But Churchill's statements about Russia's present inferiority in hydrogen weapons goes far to explain why the Communists have been so careful so far not to begin an agricultural lands, rolling plains with grazing beef cattle, jungles where wild profusion, oil fields, beach resorts, emerald, gold or silver mines.
For Colombia, in addition to its natural beauties for the tourist, is also fabulously rich in natural resources. It is the world's second largest coffee producer and the second largest petroleum producer in South America.
Call, in the rich Cauca Valley, is the fastest growing city in Colombia and plans are now under way for the development of industrial, agricultural complexes similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority. The master plan for this program was developed by David E. Lilienthal, original TVA chairman.
Call has made a bid for tourists with a sporty new golf course and features a swimming pool atop one of its hills.
Old monasteries and remains of ancient fortresses can be seen alongside modern conveniences for tourists in the port city of Cartagena on the Caribbean. Cartagena was once the Queen City of the Spanish Main.
Another famous city is Barranquilla on the beautiful Magdalena River. It is a world famous port where paddlewheel steamers like those years ago on the Mississippi can be seen plying the river.

BOGOTA, Colombia (Special) — A blend of the old and the new makes Colombia a fascinating country to the tourists who are more and more discovering the attractions of its natural beauty and its modern conveniences.
Bogota, which nestles amid Andean peaks, in nearly 9,000 feet high and is one of the oldest cities in the Americas. It was founded in 1538 by Gonzalo Jimenez de Quesada, a journeyman of the conquistadors. The city has preserved the delicate architecture of a century and a half ago, with its narrow streets and modern office buildings. The temperature frequently drops sharply at the evening and a topcoat is a welcome addition when you begin to feel the cold of the high altitude of the city.
The Colonial Museum in Bogota stands on the site of the old Spanish monastery, and Silve Ballester's residence, tucked high on a mountainside, overlooks the city where the Palace de San Carlos, built in the 1930's, now houses the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
Equally interesting and ancient cities can be reached by air from Bogota within an hour or two and present a varied pattern of rich agricultural lands, rolling plains with grazing beef cattle, jungles where wild profusion, oil fields, beach resorts, emerald, gold or silver mines.

BOGOTA, Colombia (Special) — A blend of the old and the new makes Colombia a fascinating country to the tourists who are more and more discovering the attractions of its natural beauty and its modern conveniences.
Bogota, which nestles amid Andean peaks, in nearly 9,000 feet high and is one of the oldest cities in the Americas. It was founded in 1538 by Gonzalo Jimenez de Quesada, a journeyman of the conquistadors. The city has preserved the delicate architecture of a century and a half ago, with its narrow streets and modern office buildings. The temperature frequently drops sharply at the evening and a topcoat is a welcome addition when you begin to feel the cold of the high altitude of the city.
The Colonial Museum in Bogota stands on the site of the old Spanish monastery, and Silve Ballester's residence, tucked high on a mountainside, overlooks the city where the Palace de San Carlos, built in the 1930's, now houses the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
Equally interesting and ancient cities can be reached by air from Bogota within an hour or two and present a varied pattern of rich agricultural lands, rolling plains with grazing beef cattle, jungles where wild profusion, oil fields, beach resorts, emerald, gold or silver mines.
In addition to its natural beauties for the tourist, is also fabulously rich in natural resources. It is the world's second largest coffee producer and the second largest petroleum producer in South America.
Call, in the rich Cauca Valley, is the fastest growing city in Colombia and plans are now under way for the development of industrial, agricultural complexes similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority. The master plan for this program was developed by David E. Lilienthal, original TVA chairman.
Call has made a bid for tourists with a sporty new golf course and features a swimming pool atop one of its hills.
Old monasteries and remains of ancient fortresses can be seen alongside modern conveniences for tourists in the port city of Cartagena on the Caribbean. Cartagena was once the Queen City of the Spanish Main.

Looking back through the notes I made while listening to the debate over H. B. 476 in the House of Representatives, I find a number of interesting facts. First, the bill was introduced by Rep. French of the 14th district, who is now in the House of Representatives. It was a two-year sales tax at 3% on all goods sold in the state. The bill was passed by the House on February 21 in Little Rock. I find additional material which never got into the newspapers.

Although I was scheduled to make the principal speech against the 3% tax bill, and did so near the meeting's close, my reputation as a speaker was not enhanced. I kept a pencil busy all through the proceedings. For when I was listening to the much more than the debate over the 3% tax, it was a resume of the political as well as the financial troubles of the public school system of Arkansas.

First there was the old feud between legislators and the Department of Education over the maintenance of an expensive system of county school supervisors. We used to call them "superintendents." The feud cropped out at the very start of the February 21 hearing, my notes show.

County Judge Can't Contract, Chancellor Rule

Chancellor Paul X. Williams of Booneville, (14th District) acting as special judge for Chancellor James H. Pilkinton who disqualified himself, ruled Thursday that Hempstead County Judge U. G. Garrett had exceeded his authority in using county equipment for private contracting, although money derived went to the county.

The opinion followed a hearing in which two local private contractors, O. F. Luck and Tom Duckett, sought to restrain the use of county-owned equipment in digging stock ponds, terracing and other heavy equipment work not connected with the county. Judge Williams heard the case in January but took the testimony under advisement.

The case is of particular statewide interest as practically every County Judge uses county equipment in some manner or other for many years. A restraining order is expected to be issued soon.

Judge Williams' opinion in part said: "Authority to lease equipment which is a part of the control and management of the county property for the use of the county does not extend to making a contract in the name of the county with an individual, partnership, corporation, municipality or other political entity by the terms of which the county engages in business for profit."

"And since there is not authority for making such a contract it follows that there is not authority to use the county equipment in carrying out such a contract."

The court has found that he (Judge Garrett) has exceeded his authority by leasing county-owned equipment to private contractors for the purpose of making a contract for the use of the county equipment in carrying out such a contract.

Security Council Takes Up Bloody Border Dispute

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The U. N. Security Council turned today to Egyptian charges and Israeli countercharges touched off by Monday night's bloody border fighting near Gaza.

The explosive tension resulting from the clashes — in which 38 Egyptians and eight Israelis were reported killed — was heightened by militant statements from the Egyptian and Israeli premiers and Egyptian progress toward a new Arab military league against Israel.

There was some expectation the council would postpone its discussion of the rival charges until after a report from the Egyptian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission, which supervises the 1949 truce along the Egyptian-Israeli border, is expected to meet Sunday on the Gaza fighting.

Wednesday charged Israel with "aggression" in the 600-mile-long Gaza coastal strip occupied by the Egyptians.

Egypt charged Israel's troops with attacking a military camp near the ancient city of Gaza, two miles inside the territory, and with ambushing a truckload of reinforcements. Egypt termed this the "most brutal act of aggression since the 1948 armistice."

The amendment offered by Sen. Clinton Wade of Fayetteville, which would prevent a millage until the Public Service Commission certified that the property in each school district had been assessed at 20 per cent of its market value.

The Arkansas Education Association offered the amendment to the joint Constitutional Amendments Committee earlier this week. The committee rejected it.

Sen. James P. Baker Jr. of West Helena argued that the Wade amendment to the resolution, which would prevent a millage until the Public Service Commission certified that the property in each school district had been assessed at 20 per cent of its market value.

Amendment to Correct Oversight in Sales Tax Bill Is Again Stalled

By RAY STEPHENS
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to repeal the no-limit law on school millage and clamp a 30-mill restriction on the amount of taxes schools can collect on property was approved by the State Senate this morning.

The vote guarantees the proposal a place on the ballot in the 1958 general election. The Legislature is empowered to submit three constitutional amendments to the voters.

Police Still Looking for Murderer

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran detectives of the New York City homicide squad, digging into the sixth week of their hunt for the slayer of Serge Rubinstein, say "We'll find him and it will be soon."

Time, rumors and leads aplenty for the police files, more than a month after the February 21 shooting, the millionaire draft dodger and his wife were found strangled to death in his sumptuous Avenue mansion.

Each tip, each rumor, each suspicion must be checked out. So too must many names among more than 1,000 found in the victim's papers.

There are the daily chores of 30 to 35 detectives assigned around the clock to nothing else but the Rubinstein investigation.

The order from their chief, "Dig it up," they say.

By BRUCE HENDERSON
HAVING, Tex. (AP) — A walkout by schoolteachers entered its fourth day today.

The superintendent had been fired and was appealing. Nine principals and executives who supported him by noon of February 21, after the walkout, were found strangled to death in his sumptuous Avenue mansion.
